The Nello L. Teer Company of Durham began building the Blue Ridge Parkway in 1935, working two six-hour shifts in order to provide the maximum number of jobs to unemployed men. In this photo, employees operate a steam shovel and a tractor.